Cabool Noses Out In Tenth Inning

Wild base throwing by Crouch, substituting behind the bat for Brasher, lost the game Sunday to Cabool, 6 to 5. At that, the Grays made Cabool travel ten innings to win. Owens pitched a much better game than Havens and should have won by a wide margin. The Grays put up an excellent game, and with their regular catcher on the job, the Cabool team is outclassed. No less than three of Cabool's runs were gifts due to wild throws by Crouch.

Batteries—Cabool: Haven and Hamilton; Mansfield: Owens and Crouch.

Norwood is Overwhelmed.

With a makeshift line-up, and using recruit pitchers most of the time, Mansfield defeated Norwood, Monday, by a score of 19 to 9.

Two young pitchers—Strong and D. Dennis—both southpaws, were used by the Grays, and showed classes. However, they are not quite ready to go the full route against stronger opposition. They will be used by the Grays against the weaker teams this season, and with careful coaching, they should be ready for regular mound duty next year.

Batteries—Strong, D. Dennis, R. Dennis and Brasher for Mansfield; Bruton, Anderson and Borjek for Norwood.

Bee Culture.

Mansfield, Mo.
May 31, 1921.

Mansfield Mirror,
Dear Mr. Davis:

"The Foul Brood or Bee Pest" is spreading out in Wright and adjoining counties. This disease is the most destructive to bee colonies. It starts in an apiary without noise, and it frequently happens that whole colonies become infected before the owner realizes that disease is present.

The bee-keeper may attribute the losses observed to some other causes. In this way, the disease gets a start, making eradication difficult when once the cause of the loss has been discovered.

In view of the widespread distribution of the diseases, it is most desirable that all bee-keepers learn to distinguish the diseases when they appear, and to know how to keep them under control.

There are two infectious diseases of the brood of bee, now known as American Foul Brood, and European Foul Brood. Both diseases weaken colonies by reducing the number of emerging bees needed to replace the old adult bees, which die from natural or other causes.

If the bee keeper opens a hive that is diseased, a very characteristic and unusually penetrating odor is often noticeable, of the decaying brood. American Foul Brood can perhaps best be likened to the odor of heated glue. While European Foul Brood can best be likened to a sour odor, which reminds one of yeast fermentation.

Treatment: Take all of the adult bees out of the diseased hive, and transfer same into a new hive. The aim of the manipulations is to remove or destroy all of the bacteria (bacillus larvae). It should be remembered to stop the further spread of the disease by removing all material capable of transmitting the cause of the trouble. In all of the operations great pains should be taken not to spread the disease through carelessness. Now, then, all of you "bee friends", be on the watch, and help to stop the distribution of these diseases. I am always to your advice, and close in the respect of the welfare of bee culture.

Yours truly,
Aug. Oetting.

Wright County Boys In Cow Race.

Missouri dairymen in the March monthly contest of the Cow Race exceeded every production record made up to this time. In all, 92, or practically one-fourth of all cows on test, produced above 50 pounds of fat or more.

Two cows owned by William Wiggins of Mountain Grove, won places on the Honor Roll for March. They were: Wiggins' May Queen with a production of 1105.3 pounds of milk and 61.704 pounds of fat during the month; and Wiggins' Lady Louise, 1130.4 pounds of milk and 55.313 pounds of fat.

Very truly yours,
C. W. Turner, Superintendent, Official Testing.

Treatment of Common Colds.

"If all who catch cold could be persuaded to remain in bed for the first twenty-four hours of such an attack" says a well known physician "there would be fewer cases dragging on with distressing symptoms for weeks and often ending in some more serious disease." To make sure of a prompt recovery you should also take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Whether sick or well the bowels should move each day.
